Clare Droesch Bio

In 2015 Clare Droesch was honored as an "ACC Women's Basketball Legend." Last weekend, Clare's legendary status was further established as she was inducted into the Boston College Hall of Fame for her amazing exploits on the hardwood. Many locals made the trip from Rockaway to share in this lifetime achievement.

A Belle Harbor native and lifelong resident, Clare was an All-American at Christ the King High School before heading off to Boston. "Whenever a big game was on the line, Clare Droesch wanted the basketball." The Boston College website hails her accomplishments: "The feisty and fearless point guard was a key contributor to a golden era of women's basketball at Boston College. Co-captain of the 2005 club that knocked off No. 1-ranked UConn again in her final home game; and the sharp-shooting guard who earned All-Big East recognition with a dazzling career production of 1,136 points (including 158 3-pointers), 539 rebounds, and 314 assists in 126 games (BC won 92 of them.)"
